Smart Recycling for Your Electronic Devices

You think of recycling when it comes to milk cartons or soda cans. However, have you considered what to do with those old electronic devices?

Items like computers, mobile devices, TVs and printers often contain materials that can be harmful to the environment if not disposed of properly. Additionally, recycling these devices allows for the reuse of their parts in new products, reducing waste and conserving valuable resources. Many electronic devices are even banned from landfills in the state of Wisconsin! Continue reading below to learn more about how and where to safely dispose of your electronics.

Always remember to wipe the data on your computers, mobile devices, tablets, etc. BEFORE you recycle or dispose of them as they have personal information stored on them. You can research how to best wipe them clean or refer to our January Security Update to learn more about how to dispose of your personal devices safely.

What is eCycling Wisconsin?

eCycling Wisconsin is a state-wide, manufacturer-funded program designed to encourage the recycling of electronic devices. Manufacturers are responsible for paying for the recycling of electronics, including:

- TVs
- Computers
- Printers
- Desktop printers
- Computer monitors, keyboards, mice and speakers
- Cell phones
- Fax machines

These items are among those banned from Wisconsin landfills, and improper disposal is punishable by law. See the full list of banned items by clicking this link.
